Why Good People Cant Get

Pointing to a skills gap, employers argue applicants are simply not qualified: schools aren't preparing students for jobs; the government isn't letting in enough high-skill immigrants; and even when the match is right, prospective employees won't accept jobs at the wages offered. In Why Good People Can't Get Jobs, a powerful and fast-reading book, Peter Cappelli, Wharton management professor and director of Wharton's Center for Human Resources, debunks the arguments and exposes the ...

What was one of the most memorable moments of Why Good People Can't Get Jobs? The book made me think more about why young graduates need to look for jobs with companies that will invest in them through CPD programmes. Companies need to see the dividend in employee CPD training, even if only plan to employ those staff for short fixed term contracts.
